Ten years ago, if you were under- or uninsured and you were sick or your teeth hurt, there were few affordable options in Coatesville. Your alternatives were also limited if you or your family was struggling with behavioral ...
... health issues. Enter the Brandywine Health Foundation: a gift to a community with some of the poorest towns in Pennsylvania within one of our country’s wealthiest counties.

Since then, the community has embraced the foundation as a vehicle to enhance the health care safety net and to tackle the social and economic challenges our community faces. In the past decade, the foundation has leveraged its own substantial original funding by attracting significant government, foundation, corporate and private-donor funding. Likewise, it has provided critical coordination and created a stronger network of partnerships by bringing together government officials, public agencies, nonprofits, the Coatesville Area School District (C ASD) and residents, especially parents and children.

“You don’t know what it’s like to not have an address. The people who manage this place are really terrific. They gave us a home and a community … with the neighbors, we’re like one big family.”

Judy Lelar, a resident at the Brandywine Center, built in 2008

“Besides being one of our core funders, over the last six years the Brandywine Health Foundation has given us invaluable ideas, advice, references, recommendations, and new contacts and people in the community with whom to connect and build,” says Jaclyn Gleber, Chester County Community Dental’s director of outreach and education. “It’s like a cheering section, an always-available, dream-support team. I can’t imagine organizing a nonprofit without them.”

“We don’t just provide funding,” says Frances M. Sheehan, the foundation’s president and CEO. “We also create a nurturing environment that enables the seeds of good ideas and proven, evidence-based programs to take hold, grow and bear fruit.” With that philosophy, by any concrete measure the foundation is off to a successful start after its first decade. Among its accomplishments, it has been instrumental in launching:

- ChesPenn Health Services: The county's only Federally Qualified Health Center provides affordable primary care, including pediatric, prenatal and chronic diseases services, and educational programs like prostate cancer prevention and smoking cessation classes

- Chester County Community Dental: Preventive dental services for adults and children, and sealants for schoolchildren

- Child Guidance Resource Centers: Comprehensive behavioral health services for children and their families to improve family functioning and encourage school success

The Brandywine Center

To house the above, the foundation underwrote and pulled together $13 million in public and private financing for the new Brandywine Center, a four-story building that represented the first major construction in the heart of Coatesville in 30 years. Opened in 2008, the center also provides 24 units of affordable housing for seniors.

As impressive as the millions of dollars the foundation has disbursed and the thousands of people served by the agencies it supports, the Brandywine Health Foundation's impact goes far beyond such concrete numbers to a kind of magic that is in one sense immeasurable—yet every bit as real.

Ensuring Healthy Moms & Their Babies

Born full term last May 11, Zaid-an Butcher and his mother, Artesia, have benefited from three different programs the foundation supports: The healthy pre- and post-natal baby-oriented Nurse-Family Partnership (NFP) and the Maternal and Child Health Consortium’s Healthy Start Program, as well as Planned Parenthood. For example, Mary Fichter, RN, a visiting nurse with the NFP, educated Butcher about parenting issues, proper nutrition and pre-term labor signs, which came in handy when Butcher twice experienced such symptoms and went to the hospital for treatment.

“She taught me so much and my son is real healthy,” says Butcher, 21, a first-time, single mother who, at Fichter’s suggestion, also had her son treated for thrush. These agencies effectively help women space their children, enhancing their own health, and increase the odds that infants like Zaid-an are born at a healthy weight with a bright future.

Helping Kids Grow Healthy and Productive
One of the foundation’s most ambitious projects, the Coatesville Youth Initiative (CYI), has brought 40 organizations together with CASD schools, parents and children to help our young people grow into healthy, productive citizens. “Healthy young people are critical to a healthy community,” says Harry Lewis Jr., chairman of the Brandywine Health Foundation Board of Directors, who was for 41 years a CASD teacher, track coach and principal. “We’re committed to making our youth healthy, both mentally and physically, and having them take pride in their community, get involved and give back to it.”

The CYI ServiceCorps, for example, provides full-time, meaningful summer employment with community service agencies and life-skills learning for 40 CASD students.

For the past two summers Noah Willett, now a 15-year-old ninth grader, worked with disabled workers at Handi-Crafters in Thorndale, then as a summer camp counselor at Bernardtown Baptist Church. “I learned everybody deserves respect, no matter who you are,” he says of his Handi-Crafters experience. “I can’t imagine a better way to spend my summer, getting involved by doing something that’s productive and really helps your community.”

Tapping His Potential

2009 The Coatesville Youth Initiative kicks off

Once tried to choke his aunt, Debbie Stock, who is now raising him.

But thanks to two years of intensive counseling and proper medication through the Child Guidance Resource Centers, Chris graduated in 2010 from Conestoga High School—where he continues to repair computer systems—and is nearing completion of a computer technology degree at ITT Technical Institute in King of Prussia. “I was out of control, but I’ve changed for the better,” says the 21-year-old. “I’m calmer and more agreeable, and I feel awesome now.”

Overcoming Dental Phobia
Coatesville resident Annmary Brown-Green, 55, hadn’t seen a dentist in 20 years when a toothache forced her to call Community Dental. “They took me right in the same day and, even though I was a nervous wreck, they made me feel relaxed and comfortable.” During several visits, the dentist and assistants repaired broken fillings and cavities while hygienists removed dental plaque to heal her gum infection. Even though she was uninsured, Brown-Green found her costs to be reasonable.

“I’ll definitely be coming back when I need a cleaning,” she says.

Making Essential Medicines Affordable
Before O’Lena Fordham learned about ChesPenn’s new physician dispensary, she sometimes skipped some of her diabetes, heart and thyroid medications because she simply could not afford them. But thanks to a federal program that requires drug manufacturers to provide discounted outpatient drugs to eligible health centers, the 53-year-old estimates the dispensary now saves her $500 each month.

“I feel a lot better and I know I wouldn’t be feeling the way I do now if I couldn’t keep up on my medicines,” says Fordham, whose health conditions caused her to give up her job as a pre-school daycare worker. “The physician dispensary is a godsend.”
The magical moments the foundation makes happen would not be possible without the extremely generous donations of time and support of hundreds of financial supporters and volunteers.

INDISPENSABLE VOLUNTEERS

A Corporation at the Heart of Our Community

One of our most loyal corporate sponsors is ArcelorMittal. Continuing the steel mills long tradition of supporting the Coatesville community, the company has provided the foundation with significant, direct financial support as well as volunteers and committee members for programs including the Brandywine Center and the Coatesville Youth Initiative. ArcelorMittal also has partnered with the Brandywine Health Foundation to help address community issues and facilitate local collaboration, such as the purchase and distribution of smoke alarms for residents during the 2009 arsons.

“ArcelorMittal supports organizations that are working to make a difference in this community in the areas of the environment, education, and health and safety,” says Ed Frey, general manager of ArcelorMittal USA’s Eastern Plate Division, which includes the Coatesville facility. “Brandywine Health Foundation fits well within our health and safety focus, which in turn creates a synergy in which our interests and the foundation’s impact on the community are very well aligned.”

A Three-Generation Family Affair

Albert Eastburn, his wife Jane and their family represent three generations who have provided the foundation with invaluable service. Mr. Eastburn has served as both vice chair and chair of the foundation, and Mrs. Eastburn has served on and chaired the committee of our Garden Party fundraiser. Their daughter-in-law, Laurie Eastburn, also has been a committee member for eight years. And after volunteering at the party for eight years, Chelsea Spiegelhalter—an Eastburn granddaughter—has joined the committee too.

“Putting up the building that houses the medical and dental clinics in town was very important,” says Jane Eastburn. “And so is raising money to do good things for the community that otherwise might not get done.”
Investment Policy

It is the Brandywine Health Foundation’s policy to invest funds with an asset mix of 75% equities and 25% fixed instruments and cash. A volunteer committee of experienced business managers, chaired by Treasurer Thomas Belmont Jr., regularly reviews the foundation’s financial statements and portfolio, evaluating the performance of our investment managers and accountants. The committee’s investment strategy is designed to protect the foundation’s current and long-term benefits to the community by balancing the goal of growing to meet future need while prudently minimizing risk.

Auditor’s Report

The foundation’s Audit Committee is an independent group of volunteers, chaired by foundation board member Dawn James, joined by two experienced accountants who do not serve on the board of directors. It is this committee’s responsibility to hire, evaluate and oversee the work of the foundation’s auditors, Maillie, Falconiero & Company LLP, independent of the board of directors, the president and CEO, and the staff accountants.

Notes to the Statements of Financial Position

Loans Receivable represent funds borrowed by Brandywine Health & Housing LP due to the foundation for the development of the Brandywine Center, and a loan to the BHS Transitional Corporation for the resolution of business issues. The latter loan will be repaid from the proceeds of a property sale. Grants Payable include a commitment to ChesPenn Health Services over the next two years.

Additional Note

Funds held by the BHS Transitional Corporation are housed at TD Bank. These funds are used to repay certain financial obligations of Brandywine Hospital prior to its sale to Community Health Systems. All funds remaining at BHS after the resolution of these issues will be donated to the foundation.

Looking Ahead

Clearly, it has been a decade of significant achievement. Yet our work is far from over. We’re challenged to understand how to:

• help our neighbors more effectively manage their own health,
• increase access to needed health care,
• start young people off on a healthy path, and
• better support the nonprofit organizations that are trying to accomplish these goals.

Thanks to all of you who have helped us tackle these pressing issues throughout the past 10 years. Your votes of confidence, your volunteer time, your advice and counsel, and your generous financial support have been critical. But we’ve only just begun. Looking ahead, and bolstered by your support, we remain committed to making a real difference in the lives of thousands of people, both young and old, in the greater Coatesville area.

Strengthening the greater Coatesville area’s health care safety net was the first priority of the Brandywine Health Foundation. During the past 10 years, we have expanded our emphasis to include overcoming obstacles that prevent young people from living long, healthy, productive lives. Your generous gifts during the past year have enabled us to support excellent nonprofits addressing the health needs of children and their families, and to assist youth development programs that help young people in their vulnerable adolescent and teen years.

The board of directors and staff hold sacred the responsibility you have placed on us to solve our community’s most pressing problems. It is an honor to serve the Coatesville community. Thank you.

A Decade of Wise Financial Stewardship

⭐ $10 million awarded in direct grants and scholarships
⭐ 422 grants and donations awarded
⭐ 134 nursing scholarships awarded

⭐ $19 million—foundation endowment in 2001
⭐ $26 million—foundation endowment in 2011

“Despite disbursements over the past decade of nearly $10 million, the construction of the $13 million Brandywine Center and the current economic downturn, the foundation’s endowment has grown by more than a third.

That’s a testament to both the foundation’s prudent marshaling of its resources and the extraordinary generosity of time and money by people who believe in the foundation’s work and the tremendous opportunities to build a better future through the investments we make today.”

Thomas J. Belmont Jr.,
Outgoing Chairman, Board of Directors
